Editorial Manager® Ingest

For Submission Partners

Introduction

Editorial Manager® Ingest seamlessly integrates submission partners and Editorial Manager deployments. Ingest allows submission partners to flow submissions right into journal queues, without any manual work. Editorial Manager is a cloud-based submission and peer review system used by thousands of journals worldwide.

Ingest Service

Authors are working with submission partners for document preparation including bibliography management, collaborative authoring tools, language polishing, and journal selection services. In response to this growing trend, EM offers submission partners, and the authors they work on behalf of, convenient distribution to submission queues that otherwise require manual interaction for each individual author submission.

Standards Integrated

This new Editorial Manager service leverages the U.S. National Library of Medicine's Journal Article Tag Suite (JATS) standard DTD (version 1.0 and up) to facilitate ingest of metadata in a standardized format. The ability to ingest reviewer comments means the ingest service will be attractive to the growing number of services offering independent pre-submission peer review.

The service also (optionally) makes use of Ringgold and ORCID® identifiers to ensure that transferred submissions are acccurately mapped to prior author registration records in EM, ensuring higher quality metadata. Join in bringing this streamlined service to author clients today.
